Owned the Whole Township.

One of the queerest election freaks that have come under the Journal's notice occurred in Newton County, where one township failed to hold an election because, when the time came to organize on election day, it was found that every voter in the township was related to one of the local candidates. The law says: "No person shall be eligible as a member of the board of election who is father, father-in-law, son, son-in-law, grandfather, grandson, brother, brother-in-law, uncle, nephew, first or second cousin of any candidate at such election. As every voter in the township referred to came within one of these prohibited degrees of relationship to some of the local candidates no board was organized and no election for township, county, or State officers, Indianapolis Journal.

GOV. ALTGELD'S MESSAGE.

Says the Machinery of Justice Was Made the Tool of Corporations.

Governor Altgeld's biennial message was transmitted to the Illinois General Assembly on Thursday. The message is an exhaustive one, containing nearly 25,000 words. The first half of the message is devoted to the details of State institutions. The other half treats of the labor troubles. The situation in Chicago and elsewhere during the railroad riots is reviewed, and the Governor attempts to prove that the State militia were thoroughly competent to handle any uprising that might take place. He asserts that the President and Mr. Olney were induced to send troops by false representations of trouble, that the sending of troops before the strength of the State had been spent was a perversion of the constitutional prerogative that most of the trouble arose after the troops arrived; that it was quelled by the militia and that even at its worst it was no more disastrous than the riots in Buffalo and Pennsylvania, in which the Government did not dare to interfere. The power which Mr. Cleveland exercised, Mr. Altgeld says, was no more than Emperor William and the Czar of Russia claim for themselves.

The judges of the United States courts come in for a vicious scoring. They are denounced as usurpers. The Governor declares that their punishment for contempt is not only unconstitutional, but that it violates the usage of years. He asserts that an attempt is on foot to Russinize the Government, that the foundations of the state are undermined, that we are tending toward a "corrupt oligarchy" oppressing the spiritless poor.

"The constitution divides the powers of government into the legislative, judiciary and executive, and contemplates that no two of these shall be lodged in the same person, but during the last two years the people of this country have repeatedly witnessed the operation of an entirely new form of government, which was never before heard of among men, in either monarchy or republic, that is, government by intimation, whereby a Federal judge, not content with deciding controversies brought into his court, not content with exercising the judicial functions of government, proceeds to legislate and then administer. He issues a writ which he calls an injunction forbidding whatever he pleases and what the law does not forbid, and thus legislates for himself without limitation."

Governor Altgeld dismisses as a state pretense the contention that the Federal judges base the injunctions on the interstate commerce law. This act he describes as "as harmless as a dead rabbit," so far as it regulated or controlled the railroads. He declared that the Federal judges proceeded to hold section after section of the law to be unconstitutional so far as it affected the roads. "Then," he continues, "after having thus nullified an act of Congress intended for the protection of the people, they turned around and made of it a club with which to break the backs of the men who toil with their hands, men whom Congress did not think of legislating against."

The Governor also has something to say about the control of railroads by the Federal courts when receivers have been appointed by those courts. "Anything done to the railroad is treated as contempt of court," he exclaims. "If you commit an offense against a railroad that is in the hands of its owners you will be prosecuted in the county where the offense is committed and may be sent to the penitentiary. But if you 'break on the grass' or throw a stone on a railroad that has been rebbid by speculators and then put into the hands of a receiver to freeze out stockholders you will be guilty of contempt of some court sitting several hundred miles away, and you will be liable to be carried off there, there to be tried, not by a jury but by that court whose awful dignity you have offended. It is in connection with these bankrupt roads that most of the outrageous injustices were issued during the last two years."

The question of President Cleveland's authority to send Federal troops into the State of Illinois is debated briefly. Gov. Altgeld declares that Mr. Cleveland's action was an entirely new departure in the history of our Government and a violation of the Constitution as it has been understood for a century.

"The old doctrine of State rights is in no way involved," declares Gov. Altgeld. "Nobody for a moment questions the competency of the Union. But it does involve the question whether, in connection with Federal supremacy, there does not go hand in hand the principle of local self-government. One is just as sacred, just as important as the other."

The Rise of the Buckwheat Cake

The leaven of yesterday ruins the cake of to-day. Don't spoil good buckwheat with dying raising-batter—fresh cakes want Royal Baking Powder.

Grandma used to raise to-day's buckwheats with the souring left over of yesterday! Dear old lady, she was up to the good old times. But these are days of Royal Baking Powder—freshness into freshness raises freshness.

And this is the way the buckwheat cake of to-day is made: Two cups of Buckwheat, one cup of wheat flour, two tablespoons of Royal Baking Powder, one half teaspoonful of salt, all sifted well together. Mix with milk into a thin batter and bake at once on a hot griddle.

Do not forget that no baking powder can be substituted for the "Royal" in making pure, sweet, delicious, wholesome food.

The Gallant Lilliputians.

In the middle ages the court jesters were dwarfs, but history relates that, though they made others laugh they themselves were generally very much of the same size. Little men with sore hearts who could view with giants in grumbling. It is not so with the merry Lilliputians, the petit actors, who please their audiences and yet retain enough exuberance of spirits to disport themselves occasionally for their own small personal enjoyment.

For instance, those tiny gentlemen, Elbert and Zink, perpetrated a refreshing joke recently. They were both in a Broadway car, occupying adjoining seats. Soon the car filled. A lady got in and had to stand. Seeing this, Elbert jumped up and politely offered his place. But the lady was a fine, very fine woman. She looked at the homopoeitic quantum of seating accommodation which had amply sufficed for the gentleman of reduced inches, crimsoned and remained standing. Instantly advice to the situation of affairs, Zink, too, sprang up with:

"Ach! Madame (anglophonic) laissez nous seoir!"

The laughter delayed the car some seconds, and the conductor was fined. He says, though, that the joke was worth the money! Truth.

The Falls of the McKenzie.

McKenzie River is the outflow of twin lakes on the eastern slope of Hackerman's pass. It is a mighty rushing torrent from the beginning. Two miles below Clear Lake are the first of two great falls—one at least seventy-five feet and probably more, and the other 100 feet. It is something of a task to get to them through the unbroken forest and over the roughest volcanic rock imaginable. Nothing concerning the scenery of these rugged regions is likely to be overdrawn. When we stood at the falls we were amazed at the marvels of grandeur and beauty presented. After Niagara none of us had seen anything approaching these. It is a torrent that is precipitated over the face of a cliff in the heart of an indescribably rugged canyon, and leaps without a break to the pool below, filling the gorge and covering the cliffs with spray, and causing rank growths of grass and fragrant flowers to spring up on every inch of soil. Albany Democrat.
